An architectural rendition of what the proposed Dollar General Market could look like at 120 E. Second St. is shown. The agreement would sell the property to developer Rafferty Development LLC at the City of Madison's cost ($525,000) and include $350,000 for site and other improvements to the Mulberry and Second streets area including lighting, sidewalks, road paving and planting of trees and flowers.

City signs to bring DG Market to Mulberry corridor

After 5-year effort to fill grocery gap in downtown Madison

BY BOB DEMAREE

The long awaited quest for a grocery store in downtown Madison received signs of hope Tuesday when Madison's Redevelopment Commission meeting signed an agreement that could eventually develop a DG Market at the corner of Second and Mulberry streets.

A purchase agreement was signed with a memorandum of understanding with Rafferty Development LLC to renovate and construct a DG Market (Dollar General Market) on property at 120 East Second St. currently owned by the city and vacant since Ruler Foods closed on March 31, 2018.

Rafferty Development LLC would need corporate approval by Dollar General for the property to be a DG Market which Curt Rafferty, managing member of Rafferty Development, is hopeful of achieving by the end of July. After that, the purchase agreement would be formalized.

"We've been inactively and actively trying to get this development to Madison for many, many years," Rafferty told the Redevelopment Commission, crediting Madison Mayor Bob Courtney and Tony Steinhardt III, the city's economic development director, for helping negotiate the proposal.

Rafferty noted that he is "on the back side of my development career" after having developed properties for 20 years in Florida prior to becoming involved with Dollar General stores beginning around 2000 in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky. "This location is my legacy store. This is one that I hold very dear to my heart," he said. "We want to see this succeed for downtown Madison.

"I believe we can give you a product that you will be proud of; that the customers and visitors of this community will certainly enjoy," he added.

Rafferty, who has owned the Dollar General building at 408 Jefferson St. since Oct. 17, 2007, said he has been developing properties the retailer for about 20 years. He was also involved in construction of the Dollar General Store at 3691 Clifty Drive in 2018.

With no grocery store in downtown Madison now for more than five years, Mayor Bob Courtney said recruiting a new downtown food store has been a top priority since her took office.

Dean celebrates a very storied 102 years

From Rosie the Riveter to World War II pin-up

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Joyce Delgado Dean, a one-time Rosie the Riveter and World War II pin-up, celebrated her 102nd birthday on May 31. Deran's son, Robert Dean, cited his mother's story as one of many persons in local healthcare facilities with interesting stories to tell but few visitors to listen.

When Robert Dean talks about the life of his mother it is with a level of excitement and awe that is not only remarkably spectacular but fittingly accurate for the 102 years and counting Joyce Delgado Dean has experienced on this earth.

Joyce, who celebrated her 102nd birthday on May 31, has lived a storied life indeed worthy of a story from her birth in New York City to her world travels and eventual retirement near her son in Madison.

For starters she was a Rosie the Riveter and World War II pin-up girl — the former the backbone of the American workforce when so many men were sent overseas to fight World War II and the latter the homegrown beauties who gave many of those same soldiers the hope and purpose to battle through very tough times and return home.

Joyce Dean came to the pin-up role via her roots as an actress, singer and poster girl when her publicity shots and appearances to promote the war bond effort were distributed to soldiers.

A talented singer and actor prior to that, she actually screen tested for "Gone with the Wind" at age 17, a performance that landed her a contract offer from MGM until her mother — a silent film actress, stage actress and songstress — refused to allow her underage daughter to explore the opportunity. Later, her coloratura soprano range of five octaves landed her an audition at the Met. She instead fell in love and married an Air Force pilot and they traveled the world.

During World War II and the Korean war, Joyce Dean used her singing talent to entertain the troops through the USOs on bases where she and her husband were stationed.

Morgan lived to serve community

BY BOB DEMAREE

For almost six years, Troy Morgan served as Jefferson County's Emergency Management Agency director — a position that he lived more than worked — while seeing the county through weather events and disasters while also working to improve facilities and technology.

Troy D. Morgan

"He was just a gentle giant," said County Commissioner Bobby Little, with a heart for service to do whatever was necessary in the best interest of safety for Jefferson County residents.

Early Tuesday morning, the 59-year-old Morgan died after a short illness.

Morgan assumed his role as EMA director following the retirement of Dave Bell on Sept. 1, 2017, selected over 70 applicants for the job by a County Commissioners that included Little, David Bramer and Norbert Schafer.

"I've worked with Troy since he first came on board" as the county's EMA director, said Little, who is currently serving as president of the Commissioners and has seen firsthand the job Morgan did.

"He was in the midst of everything," said Little, "but you didn't know it because he never blew his horn."

CHARLIE'S BEAT

Steamboats, blues music and golf carts

Today's article is going to touch on three seemingly disparate topics. But I assure you,dear reader, if you stick with me, we will weave them all together by the end.

CHARLIE ROHLFING
CHARLIE'S BEAT

The first topic is steamboats. Madison has a rich history with these majestic conveyances. In fact, it's not a stretch to say Madison owes its very existence to our proximity to the river and the importance of river commerce in the early 19th century.

As I'm writing this article on Wednesday of this week, the American Countess is docked on the riverbank, charming and amazing to all who pass by with her size and elegance.

The American Countess is an excursion craft, well over a football field in length and capable of carrying 242 paying passengers and over 100 staff and crew. But the early paddle boats were much more than pleasure craft, carrying freight and passengers throughout the heart of America. And perhaps most important for the purpose of this article, they disseminated the early styles of music that were coming out of the south and the Appalachian mountains.

The river corridors were melting pots of blues, bluegrass, early jazz and folk music. And Madison was in the thick of it. In fact, our rich musical heritage has earned us an invitation to join the Americana Music Triangle, an affiliation of the most important cities and towns that helped form the uniquely American music forms we enjoy today.

Over the years, Joyce Dean became a mother at age 44 — giving birth to Robert, her only child, 23 years into her marriage — and also loved to cook and be a homemaker. She loved to dance and play the piano and took up ice skating at age 76 and enjoyed skating until she broke her arm at age 80. She was married for 56 years until her husband died after a long illness in September 2001.

She's seen a fair amount of setbacks in recent years. She battled breast cancer first diagnosed when she was 90 with a re-occurrence at 97 and again at 101. She has dealt with the effects of dementia and Alzheimer's for 20 years and recently recovered from COVID but is looking forward to going home after a stay in rehab at the Waters of Clifty Falls.

Joyce Delgado Dean, pictured with son, Robert Dean, celebrated her 102nd birthday on May 31. Dean, an eight-year resident of Madison, served during World War II as a Rosie the Riveter promoting the bond effort and acting as a World War II pin-up. She had a screen test for "Gone with the Wind" at 17 years old. During World War II and the Korean war, she used her singing talent to entertain the troops through the USO on the bases where they were stationed.

While Robert Dean, a local shopkeeper, celebrates his mother for the interesting life she has lived and her strong will and determination during recent times of adversity, he does so knowing that she has his support while many others in similar situations no longer have family involved in their lives or care.

As America's population ages, there are more and more elderly who are going it alone. And while they can and do rely on the staff members who provide the health care and rehabilitation many need, they have lost a familial connection to the outside world from an occasional visit by a familiar face and/or caring friend.

Robert Dean has seen it firsthand at the Waters and other retirement homes. He said there are plenty of residents there who have interesting stories to tell and would love for someone to just visit them to listen.

"Many of these people never have a visitor so I am hoping my mother's story might prompt each of us to take just two hours a month and visit a nursing home to say 'Hello' to some of the people who may have few or no visitors," Robert Dean said. "You could greatly enrich their life, and yours, receive some sage wisdom and know that you have affected another person's life positively. Just two hours a month; if we all did it, it would mean so much to these worthwhile storytellers."

BEAT

Once our induction into the Music Triangle is complete, probably sometime next year, we'll be counted among the likes of New Orleans, Memphis, Nashville, and Clarksdale, Mississippi. Which brings me to the gentlemen playing music in our featured photo today.

I found Steve Thomas, Mike Hoffman and Kevin Carlson sitting under an orange canopy down on the river bank spinning out some tunes for the passengers disembarking from the big paddlewheeler. Their little band, the Ragged Arse Tinkers, had been hired by Visit Madison Inc. to add a welcoming flair to the folks as they came down the gangplank to discover our fair town for the first time.

"When they called me about it I jumped at the chance," related Steve Thomas, of Thomas Family Winery. "I think these paddle boats are great for our town, and anything we can do to make them feel welcome is a plus. I think more people should come down to the riverfront when these boats come in, just to add to the welcome and enjoy the nostalgic spirit of a steam boat landing."

"These boats were the lifeblood of Madison in the early days," added Kevin Carlson.

"It's great to be down here continuing the tradition and feeling the excitement."

Speaking of tradition, Kevin has been involved in an exciting project in his capacity as owner of Carlson Sign Company here in town. Kevin recently completed a spectacular hand-painted advertising sign on the brick wall of Keith and Melinda's building on Second Street, advertising the Acree Alley Cart business that they operate there.

Painted advertising on the walls of the many brick commercial buildings in downtown Madison goes back to the earliest days of our historic city. There's the Hen & Ben Shoe

Men on the east side of town and the Battle Plug tobacco sign on north West Street. And the newly re-painted Breeck Saddle and Harness visible on Main Street is thrilling to see.

I for one would like to see as many of the old faded wall signs repainted as possible. They just add vibrance and texture to our city. And I think that any new or current businesses downtown should join in with their own signs. It's a colorful and rich part of our history we need to preserve, and perpetuate.

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

The Hopefuls are playing at Red Roaster Coffee at 6:00 on Friday. Always delightful. Music in the Park is free and will be well attended. Bring your own chair! Saturday has the first smoke-free music show at First Street Saloon. The Lighthouse is doing tons of exciting renovation and upgrades down there on the river, and you can enjoy live music there Saturday night. And finally, there is a new band I've never heard of at the Moose Lodge Saturday night. Two Ton Anchor. Worth going for the name alone! The Moose show is open to the public and I'm pretty sure you can smoke in there, if that's your jam.

It's gonna be a dry, beautiful, sunny summer weekend. Get out there and see some live music!

MARKET

"We've worked tirelessly to bring a neighborhood market to the former Ruler Grocery Store building," making it the city's top economic development priority for downtown Madison, he said. "We believe so much in the importance of this effort that the city Redevelopment Commission acquired the property to maintain site control and invest in the fabric of our historic district."

In February 2021, the city purchased the grocery store building for $525,000. And that is the agreed upon purchase price with Rafferty Development LLC, basically repaying the city's Redevelopment Commission for what it invested to control the property.

Rafferty will be responsible for the design and renovation of the building's exterior based on city renderings as well as incorporating public arts into the project as part of the Mulberry arts district. In return, the city will contribute $350,000 towards site improvements and invest in other improvements to the Mulberry and Second streets area, which will include lighting, sidewalks, road paving and planting of trees and flowers as part of the overall improvements with the current Mural Park on the opposite corner from the proposed grocery.

"This entire corridor is important to the city and seen tremendous growth and investment. By partnering with Rafferty Development, their team will bring tremendous retail development experience to the table, and work with the city to develop a Dollar General Market at this location," Courtney said. "While there are still important steps to pursue with regard to the formal disposition process and approval by Dollar General to locate a DG Market here, we'll do our best to bring this to fruition and are grateful for Rafferty's investment in the community … This is a great fit for downtown and we're excited about moving forward."

Rafferty noted that Dollar General has three different prototypes of stores — a 9,100 square foot traditional store, a slightly larger 10,640 square foot DG Plus store, and the even larger DG Market store. He said the DG Market "has a lot more groceries, a lot more fresh produce, a lot more grocery item." with a concept "to bring groceries to an underserved area" with a special section for healthcare products.

John Grote, president of the Redevelopment Commission, said that is just what the Commission has been looking for in downtown Madison. "On behalf of the board, this is a long-term goal of ours. The Mayor had a vision and focused on making this happen, delivering to the downtown community. I'm excited to have you as a partner to hopefully send us over the finish line," Grote said.

"It may have taken longer, and sometimes taking longer is better, and in this instance I feel the passage of time has helped this location," Rafferty said. "I hated for this downtown district that they had very little to choose from" for grocery items, "but I think now is the time, and I like where this is going with corporate. I will do 150% my best to make sure this goes through."

Rafferty said the building will require a total refurbishment both inside and out. "There will need to be a lot of work on the building. It will have to be gutted from the inside. It will take some time to do that, and to bring everything up to code." He said Dollar General corporate officials will determine the opening date so his timetable will coincide with that decision. "They control the deadlines for when they want to open, and that is usually dictated after the meeting" in which approval is granted. "They have their demographics and know exactly what they want."

As of May 5, Dollar General has 19,294 stores that are all owned and operated by Dollar General. Rafferty owns the building that houses the Dollar General on Jefferson Street, but he doesn't know if it will remain open once the DG Market opens in the former Ruler Foods location. "That will be up to a decision by Dollar General," he said.

Rafferty, formerly of Florida but now based in Bowling Green, Kentucky, said he is a longtime fan of Madison. "I've always loved Madison," he said. "I've loved the character that they've kept. I've loved that they have not destroyed their historical buildings. I lived in Florida where they tore down everything. All along the beaches. I developed a hotel on the beach in 1989, and you could systematically see every mom and pop hotel getting destroyed. I was so depressed about seeing the high rises come that I sold in 2000. I couldn't stand the destruction of all these beautiful buildings. And that's one thing Madison has kept up, a step back in time, and think that's the draw you have here."

While addressing Madison City Council later on Tuesday, local resident Debra Beeman, a Walnut Street resident, said she is familiar with the DG Market concept and the store should be an asset to downtown Madison.

"I actually lived in a town that had one and it was very nice. The food prices were competitive ...," Beeman said. "I have a neighbor in an electrical wheelchair and she can't get up to the hilltop. I called her and told her about this and she was almost crying that she's so excited about this. I know some people are opposed to it, but I'm telling you from the people down here where I live, this is a big deal. It means a lot and I appreciate anybody who has anything to do with this. I mean that from the bottom of my heart. So I wanted to thank you all."

The building at 120 East Second St. housed Ruler Foods from Feb. 8, 2011 until March 31, 2018, but has since sat empty. The property was been a strategic location of activity for much of Madison's history. In 1849, the Madison Hotel, designed by architect Francis Costigan, was built and opened on March 27, 1850. The original building later served various other uses until it was demolished in 1949 and a Kroger grocery was built on the site. In 1979, Kroger moved to Madison's hilltop and a Jay C Foods Store took over the building in 1980, remaining there until closing on Jan. 29, 2011, when the space was revamped as Ruler Foods.

Some of his favorite places he worked was Highland Memory Gardens in Des Moines, Iowa and Palm Cemeteries and Mortuaries in Las Vegas. He was a member of the Cornerstone Baptist Church in Hanover supporting his son, Mike as the pastor there and serving as a deacon. Paul was a faithful man and dedicated his life in service to his Lord and Savior. Paul died on Thursday, June 1, 2023, at 6:30 p.m. at the Hickory Creek of Madison in Madison, Indiana.

Paul will be missed by his loving sons, Paul Johnson, Jr. and his wife, Angela of Fullerton, CA, Jeff Johnson and his wife, Julie of Castle Rock, CO, Steve Johnson and his wife, Amy of Ottawa, IL, Pastor Mike Johnson and his wife, Missy of Hanover, IN, Tom Johnson and his wife, Sherri of Castle Rock, CO; his loving daughters, Debbie Johnson Dow of Hanover, IN, Betsy Johnson of Harper, KS, Suzanne Johnson of Huntington Beach, CA; his grandchildren, Melanie, Jerome, Gabi, Glenn, Michelle, Kristy, Carissa (Josh), Michael, Kelly, Michael, Marilyn, Jill, Allen, Kyle, Amanda, Zachary, Cole, and Dylan; his great grandchildren, Aryana, Gabriel, Akaylah, Echo, Sason, Maybree, and Ryder; his brother in law, Harry David Brooks and his wife, Arlene of Salem, Oregon; and other relatives. He was preceded in death by his father, Sven Oscar Johnson, his mother, Gladys Amelia Gahm Johnson, his beloved wife of nearly 69 years, Barbara Ann Banks Johnson, his sisters, Arlene Carruth and Shirley May Williams, and his son in law, Mason Glenn Dow.

Funeral services will be conducted on Saturday, June 10, 2023, at 3 p.m., by Pastor Mike Johnson at the Cornerstone Baptist Church, 221 West Kuntz Road in Hanover, IN. Interment will follow in the Hanover Cemetery on Logan's Point Drive in Hanover. Friends may visit on Saturday, June 10, 2023 from 1 p.m. until the time of service at the Cornerstone Baptist Church.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Cornerstone Baptist Church. Cards are available at the Morgan & Nay Funeral Centres of Hanover and Madison. Online condolences, remembrances, and memorials can be left at www.morgan-nay.com

Angela Mary Simons

Sadly, Angela Mary Simons (nee Whisman) has lost her courageous battle with brain cancer on Saturday, June 3, 2023, in Terre Haute. Angela was born to Hiram Lee & Norma Mary Whisman (nee Gilland) on May 20, 1952, in Noblesville, Indiana. Angela was the only girl in the family, having five brothers—Ronnie, Donnie, Tim, Kenny, and Steve. She was a lifelong Catholic and spoke to God in prayer during quiet moments. Angela was sure to nudge her kids to lean on God, particularly during difficult times. She was married to Sam J Simons, the love of her life & her best friend, on November 23, 1997.

She was predeceased by her loving parents, Hiram Lee Whisman & Norma Mary Whisman; her brothers Ronnie Whisman (2004) & Donnie Whisman (2013); and her nephew Ronald Lee (2019). She is survived by her loving husband, Sam; her children, Carrie Ann Mize (Brett); Jonathan Simons (Emily); Christopher Simons (Numia); Katherine Simons Parvin (Larry); and Julie Coryea (LeRoy); and her granddaughters—Addison, with whom she shared a very special bond, Adrienne, Lillian, Calliope, and Peregrine. She is also survived by Kenneth Whisman (Liz); Tim Whisman (Paula); and Steve Whisman (Carol), as well as many nieces, nephews, and friends.

Angela attended Tipton High School and worked as an administrative assistant for many years before transitioning to a career in interior design. Over the years Angela had many adventures, moving through various Indiana towns, including Atlanta, Tipton, Noblesville, and beyond; in more recent years, she lived in Scituate, Massachusetts, and then Sherman, Connecticut. In retirement, she & Sam bought a beautiful property in Madison, Indiana, which is where they have resided since autumn of 2021.

She had a great love of traveling with Sam, spending time with their basset hounds, antiquing, finding a good bargain at TJ Maxx, and listening to music—LOUD music. Family members remember her always ready to share in a laugh or to make silly sounds and nicknames at them. Each year, Angela was excited and eager to travel with Sam to the Atlanta Earth Festival, which always fell around the same time as Carrie's birthday; she always looked forward to these events, as she always missed her family when living far away. Angela was a diva and loved looking her best, from her fun fashion finds to the newest organic makeup; she was sure to always look top-notch. While this is true, she also loved to camp, run around outside barefoot, and swim in pools and lakes. She made great efforts to organize neat trips and to get the most out of life. Angela will be greatly missed.

Angela's Catholic Funeral Mass will be at 1 p.m. on Saturday, June 10 at St. John the Baptist Catholic Church (340 Mill St, Tipton, IN 46072) with Father Goth presiding. Burial will follow at St. John's Cemetery. Visitation will also be on Saturday, June 10 from 10 a.m. until 12:45 p.m. at Young-Nichols Funeral Home (216 W Jefferson St, Tipton, IN 46072).

Memorial donations may be made to St. John's Catholic Church, 340 Mill Street, Tipton, Indiana, 46072.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, June 9, the 160th day of 2023. There are 205 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 9, 2004, the body of Ronald Reagan arrived in Washington to lie in state in the U.S. Capitol Rotunda before the 40th president's funeral.

On this date:

In 1732, James Oglethorpe received a charter from Britain's King George II to found the colony of Georgia.

In 1915, guitarist, songwriter and inventor Les Paul was born in Waukesha, Wisconsin.

In 1940, during World War II, Norway decided to surrender to the Nazis, effective at midnight.

In 1954, during the Senate Army-McCarthy hearings, Army special counsel Joseph N. Welch berated Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wis., asking: "Have you no sense of decency, sir? At long last, have you left no sense of decency?"

In 1969, the Senate confirmed Warren Burger to be the new chief justice of the United States, succeeding Earl Warren.

In 1972, heavy rains triggered record flooding in the Black Hills of South Dakota; the resulting disaster left at least 238 people dead and $164 million in damage.

In 1978, leaders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints struck down a 148-year-old policy of excluding black men from the Mormon priesthood.

In 1983, Britain's Conservatives, led by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, won a decisive election victory.

In 1986, the Rogers Commission released its report on the Challenger disaster, criticizing NASA and rocket-builder Morton Thiokol for management problems leading to the explosion that claimed the lives of seven astronauts.

In 1993, the science-fiction film "Jurassic Park," directed by Steven Spielberg, had its world premiere in Washington, D.C.

In 2020, hundreds of mourners packed a Houston church for the funeral of George Floyd, a Black man whose death during a Minneapolis arrest inspired a worldwide reckoning over racial injustice.

Ten years ago: Risking prosecution by the U.S. government, 29-year-old intelligence analyst Edward Snowden was revealed as the source of The Guardian and The Washington Post disclosures about secret American surveillance programs.

Five years ago: After leaving the annual G-7 summit in Canada, President Donald Trump pulled out of a joint statement with other summit leaders, citing what he called "false statements" by the host, Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau. Trudeau warned that he wouldn't hesitate to retaliate against new U.S. tariffs. Justify, ridden by Mike Smith and trained by Bob Baffert, won the Belmont Stakes to become horse racing's 13th Triple Crown winner and the second in the past four years. Simona Halep won her first Grand Slam trophy, beating Sloane Stephens in the women's final at the French Open.

One year ago: At its first public hearing on the matter, the House panel investigating the Jan. 6 insurrection at the U.S. Capitol, laid the blame firmly on Donald Trump, saying the assault was not spontaneous but an "attempted coup" and a direct result of the defeated president's effort to overturn the 2020 election. The hearing included a never-before-seen 12-minute video of extremist groups leading the deadly siege and startling testimony from Trump's most inner circle. The U.S. Justice Department opened a sweeping civil rights investigation into the Louisiana State Police amid mounting evidence that the agency showed a pattern of looking the other way in the face of beatings of mostly Black men.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Saturday, June 10, the 161st day of 2023. There are 204 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 10, 1967, six days of war in the Mideast involving Israel, Syria, Egypt, Jordan and Iraq ended as Israel and Syria accepted a United Nations-mediated cease-fire.

On this date:

In 1692, the first execution resulting from the Salem witch trials in Massachusetts took place as Bridget Bishop was hanged.

In 1907, eleven men in five cars set out from the French embassy in Beijing on a race to Paris. (Prince Scipione Borghese of Italy was the first to arrive in the French capital two months later.)

In 1935, Alcoholics Anonymous was founded in Akron, Ohio, by Dr. Robert Holbrook Smith and William Griffith Wilson.

In 1963, President John F. Kennedy signed into law the Equal Pay Act of 1963, aimed at eliminating wage disparities based on gender.

In 1971, President Richard M. Nixon lifted a two-decades-old trade embargo on China.

In 1977, James Earl Ray, the convicted assassin of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., escaped from Brushy Mountain State Prison in Tennessee with six others; he was recaptured June 13.

In 1978, Affirmed, ridden by Steve Cauthen, won the 110th Belmont Stakes to claim horse racing's 11th Triple Crown.

In 1991, 11-year-old Jaycee Dugard of South Lake Tahoe, California, was abducted by Phillip and Nancy Garrido; Jaycee was held by the couple for 18 years before she was found by authorities.

In 2009, James von Brunn, an 88-year-old white supremacist, opened fire in the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington, D.C., killing security guard Stephen T. Johns. (Von Brunn died at a North Carolina hospital in January 2010 while awaiting trial.)

In 2016, Muhammad Ali was laid to rest in his hometown of Louisville, Kentucky, after an all-day send-off. "Mr. Hockey" Gordie Howe, who set scoring records that stood for decades, died in Sylvania, Ohio, at 88.

In 2020, protesters pulled down a century-old statue of Confederate President Jefferson Davis in Richmond, Virginia, the former capital of the Confederacy.

Ten years ago: Jury selection began in Sanford, Florida, in the trial of neighborhood watch volunteer George Zimmerman, charged with second-degree murder in the fatal shooting of 17-year-old Trayvon Martin. (Zimmerman was acquitted.)

Five years ago: President Donald Trump and North Korean leader Kim Jong Un arrived in Singapore, two days ahead of their summit.

One year ago: As Russia's invasion of Ukraine entered its fourth month, officials in Kyiv expressed fears that the specter of "war fatigue" could erode the West's resolve to help the country push back Moscow's aggression. The Washington Post fired reporter Felicia Sonmez, who triggered a vigorous online debate over social media policy and public treatment of colleagues after she criticized a fellow reporter for retweeting an offensive joke.

Today's Birthdays: Actor Alexandra Stewart is 84. Singer Shirley Alston Reeves (The Shirelles) is 82. Actor Jurgen Prochnow is 82. Media commentator Jeff Greenfield is 80. Actor Frankie Faison is 74. MORGAN

During Morgan's tenure as EMA director, the county moved into a new Jefferson County Public Safety Center, updated its emergency alert system, acquired a central repository for its equipment and supplies and responded to disasters and much more.

When Morgan was first appointed as EMA director, he first to find a location for the EMA office, working with Tammy Monroe, who was then the County Health Administrator, to provide space for the Emergency Operations Center within the health department building. But by not having a permanent location for EMA, the county risked denial of all funding grants through Homeland Security.

The County Commissioners knew something needed to be done but they didn't know where to go. It was Morgan who suggested the possibility of the former Work One building at 620 Green Road that has now become the Jefferson County Public Safety Center.

Little said it was Morgan who made it all happen. "Troy was all over it. He was instrumental in its purchase, and after the purchase we decided to house 911 dispatch up there as well," which needed more space than had been available when its operations were located at the county jail as well as technological advances that can come with a state of the art building.

During the transformation of the Work One building into the Jefferson County Public Safety Center, Little said Morgan worked to ensure the building was nothing but the best. "At that time, along with performing EMA duties daily, he was at the building every day to make sure the remodeling and design went as planned. He was very instrumental in that."

And the building is now what Little calls a "state-of-the-art facility."

The building became operational in 2020, but it was more than a year later on July 31, 2021 when a dedication ceremony was held due to delays from the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic.

Little praised Morgan for his leadership at that time. "During the COVID pandemic, Troy oversaw all the meetings with the city officials, the county officials, the health officials, staff, state officials, and of course KDH officials. It made Jefferson County residents the safest possible during that pandemic. Troy was a big spearhead of that."

When Morgan became concerned about the county's notification and alert system, he decided Jefferson County should move to the Rave notification platform that's now utilized by the county. "He stayed with it and made it happen," said Little, because of his determination to provide critical information for the public during hazardous or emergency situations.

Little said Morgan always worked to stay in contact with all resources for whatever the situation might be. "He talked to National Weather Service out of Louisville because we always were on the fringe, and Troy made sure Jefferson County was included in any warnings and alerts."

Little said Morgan was "amazing in the way he handled major issues that the county faced, and this was never more apparent than when the county was hit with major flooding on Labor Day weekend 2022 in the Brushy Fork area. I honestly don't think the flood waters had started to recede when Troy already had all the state and federal officials headed to Jefferson County the next day to view the site, then he was filing all the paperwork necessary to seek any financial aid available." Throughout the process, Morgan also remained accessible to the public, always working to keep everyone informed.

"What was so nice about Troy Morgan is that he took care of so many things you didn't have to worry about it. He'd come back, and say, 'Here's where we are on this, what do you think?' Most of the legwork had already been done."

— Bobby Little
County Commissioner

Most recently, Morgan worked with the county in developing a Logistics Building in Hanover. "When that building was for sale, Troy was behind the scenes from the get-go. It's just the way he operated. He was constantly thinking outside of the box to make things better," said Little.

Last year, when the need for AEDs (Automated External Defibrillator) came up during the Jefferson County 4-H Fair, Morgan took the leadership in gathering input from others. So far two AEDs have been purchased by the county for the fairgrounds and 30 locations overall have been identified throughout county government buildings where AEDs could be an asset so the county can plan for the future.

"What was so nice about Troy is that he took care of so many things you didn't have to worry about it," said Little. "He'd come back, and say, 'Here's where we are on this, what do you think?' Most of the legwork had already been done." And he cared what other people thought. "He was always asking other people who were affected. He was thinking about everybody involved all the way through when he did a project."

With the loss of Morgan, the Commissioners will select the county's next EMA director. Little said Morgan will be a tough act to follow. "They have a big set of shoes to try to fill," Little said, noting that Morgan had all the elements of character, determination, knowledge, communication skill and talent to be a one-of-a-kind. "He was all about the county and keeping everybody safe."

Prior to serving as the EMA director, Morgan served eight years as County Coroner (1997-2004) and was on Madison City Council for almost two years (2016-17). He also worked several years for King's Daughters' Hospital — first as EMS director and later as a clinical analyst.

Both Madison City Council and Hanover Town Council observed a moment of silence in memory of Morgan at their meetings on Tuesday.

"Troy will be very fondly remembered and very missed. He set an example for all of us and leaves a void with his absence. My condolences to his family and friends and to all of his work family as well. Troy and I have been friends since grade school and Boys Club days. He served our community as a coroner, city councilman, and EMA director. He was authentic and kind to everyone who knew him," Madison Mayor Bob Courtney said.

Hanover Town Council president Debbie Kroger said Morgan's death is "very sad for our community."

Morgan was the EMS director when Kroger moved to Hanover in 1990, and she worked under him while employed by the ambulance service. "He was a very nice guy. He did amazing things for the community and for the county."

Madison Police Chief John Wallace also remarked on Morgan's sudden passing. "The Madison Police Department is deeply saddened by the sudden loss of EMA Director Troy Morgan. Troy was a pillar of stability in time of crisis, a trusted colleague, and a good friend to all. Troy put community first as he worked diligently behind the scenes to keep his beloved Madison/Jefferson County safe. Our deepest condolences go out to Troy's wife Lisa and his family."

Jefferson County Sheriff Ben Flint also offered his condolences. "Our thoughts are with his wife Lisa and the rest of his family … The Jefferson County Public Safety community has lost a great servant with the passing of Director Morgan."

Jefferson County Republican chair Pam Crozier said there will be a celebration of life for Morgan at Saturday's Lincoln Reagan Dinner. "What a huge loss of our county," she noted.

Until a new EMA director is selected, Little said Madison Township Fire Department Chief Robert Black will be acting in that capacity.

Funeral arrangements for Troy Morgan are pending at the Morgan & Nay Funeral Center in Madison, www.morgan-nay.com.

How does an insurance company invest your premiums?

"Layin' it on the line"

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

Insurance companies play a crucial role in our society, providing individuals and businesses with financial protection against unexpected losses. To do this, insurance companies collect premiums from policyholders. But what happens to your premium once it is paid to the insurance company?

Insurance companies don't just store your premiums in a giant safe until they're needed to pay claims. Instead, they put these funds to work by investing them. This practice is vital to insurance companies for several reasons.

Let's break it down. When you pay a premium for an insurance policy, the insurance company pools your premium together with those paid by other policyholders. The pooling of premiums is the first step that allows the insurance company to spread out the risk of potential claims among many policyholders.

Now, these pooled premiums form a large amount of money known as a reserve. This reserve is there to ensure that the insurance company has enough money to pay out if a policyholder files a claim. But while this money is sitting in the reserve, the insurance company doesn't just let it idle. They invest this money to generate income and to increase the value of the reserve.

Investment income helps to keep the insurance premiums lower than they would be otherwise. Without the income from investments, insurance companies would need to charge much higher premiums to maintain their financial stability and be able to pay claims.

So, how does an insurance company invest your premiums? They typically follow a conservative investment strategy because it's essential to maintain the ability to pay claims even in unfavorable market conditions.

The investments of insurance companies are usually in the form of bonds, especially government and high-quality corporate bonds. Bonds are chosen because they are relatively safe compared to other types of investments and provide a steady income in the form of interest. Some part of their investments might also be in real estate, mortgages, and stocks, but these usually represent a smaller portion of the investment portfolio because they come with higher risk.

The specific rules and regulations about how insurance companies can invest their funds vary from state to state and are overseen by the state's department of insurance in which the company is domiciled. These regulations are in place to ensure that insurance companies are not taking excessive risks with the premiums they have collected.

Insurance premiums are not just used to pay claims. Instead, they are carefully invested to earn income, helping the insurance company to remain financially stable and to keep premiums affordable. This prudent financial management is essential to ensure that the insurance company can honor its commitment to policyholders even in the face of large or unexpected claims.

Madison golfers break sectional drought

Team shoots impressive 296 at Sunrise

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Madison broke its uncharacteristic four-year sectional championship drought with one of the best rounds in school history and rolled to the IHSAA Golf Sectional title at Sunrise Golf Course on Monday.

Thanks to the COVID-19 pandemic and back-to-back losses to Austin, Madison hadn't won a sectional title since 2019 when it won its eighth-straight crown and 24th in school history.

Madison's 25th title came in near-record fashion when all five golfers broke 80 on the day and the team shot a 296 fir the third-lowest score in the sectional's history.

"I felt really good about coming in to today. But a 296? I didn't plan on that," Madison coach Chris Conner said. "I really thought we could get to a 305, that was the number I had in my head. And I felt good about it. But this surprised me."

Madison briefly broke into the state rankings early in the season before a brief lull at the halfway point dropped the Cubs out. But over the past two weeks, Conner had seen his team rediscovering its form and it showed on Monday.

The Cubs were so deep that it was Clayton Benkert, the squad's No. 3 player, won low-medalist honors, firing an even-par 72 to best teammates Henry Ashley and Landon True by one stroke.

Despite his position on the team, Benkert's round was no surprise. He had been scoring near the top of Madison's team for the past month and claimed low-medalist against Jennings County in the regular season finale last week.

"I was zoned in last night and this morning I just stayed locked in and played it smart and hit good shots," Benkert said. "The last few weeks I've been practicing a lot till about nine o'clock every night. Just getting ready for sectionals."

"He just reminds me of several kids we've had here. I could name five or six that more or less just stay out here. They live out here on the course," Conner said. "They live it and that's what it takes. And that's what he's been doing."

Ashley officially finished second on a scorecard tiebreaker and True was third. Luke Barron carded a 78 and Jackson Lynch finished with a 79, that officially didn't count but was the 10th lowest-score on the day.

"If you're dropping a 79, that's a pretty good day," Conner said.

Madison's Clayton Benkert launches a tee shot off No. 9 during the IHSAA Sectional at Sunrise Golf Course on Monday. Benkert shot an even-par 72 to win the tournament.

Benkert shot a 36 on the front nine and, as one of the first finishers, wasn't sure if anybody would catch him. Waiting the nearly three hours for the tournament to end was stressful.

"I was nervous when everybody was coming in and just seeing if I was gonna go to a playoff or not," Benkert said. "It was nerve-racking."

Madison was the only local team to advance to the regional, which was played on Thursday at Champions Pointe. Shawe's Eli Turner shot a 78 and tied Rising Sun's Nate Elliott for the final qualifying spot, but lost the chance to advance in a one-hole playoff.

Switzerland County placed eighth overall as a team with a 383 and Southwestern was ninth with a 385.

Evan Bosaw led Switzerland with an 87, Jacob Stewart had a 96, Jacob Williams a 88, Ben Bovard-Roberts a 101 and Ethan Weaver a 103.

Jackson Taylor paced Southwestern with a 91. Wyatt Barker had a 93, Adam Boley a 100, Blake Boley a 101 and Max Joseph a 105.

Scottsburg finished second as a team with a 321 and Jennings County was third with a 334 as both teams advanced to the regional. Austin's Landon Smith shot a 76 and Lawrenceburg's Cameron Williamson had a 77 as both joined Elliott in the regional as individuals.

Madison's next test is the IHSAA Regional at Champions Pointe, considered the toughest regional field in the state. Only the top three teams and top two individuals will advance to the state finals next week. Madison will be playing with Franklin and Connersville.

"Honestly, we just got to hit smart shots," Benkert said. "We played a practice round so we know what clubs to hit. You just can't make any silly mistakes."

"The key down there is staying out of the rough. That rough is thick and it's unforgiving. It's the key to the day," Conner said. "We've got to hit fairways. If we hit fairways, we can move on. We've just got to stay out of that rough."

Former Hanover College football coach and Madison Consolidated High School graduate Wayne Perry was inducted into the Indiana Football Hall of Fame over the weekend during a celebration held at the North Side Events and Social Club in Indianapolis.

Perry led the Panthers as head coach from 1982-2007, winning an Indiana collegiate-record 174 games. During his tenure, he won eight conference championships and made nine national playoffs.

Perry was named the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics District 21 Coach of the Year seven times while also being named the league Coach of the Year on six separate occasions.

He became the winningest coach in Indiana collegiate football in 2005 when the Panthers defeated Mount St. Joseph 41-35. Perry surpassed Butler University legend Tony Hinkle.

Prior to coaching at Hanover, Perry was a 1968 graduate of Madison Consolidated High School. After graduating from DePauw University, Perry coached high school football at East Central before taking an assistant coaching position at Hanover in 1978. He was named head coach at Hanover in 1982.

Reds' De La Cruz belts 1st homer, Dodgers skid

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Elly De La Cruz blasted a 458-foot drive for his first major league homer and Will Benson hit a game-ending home run in the ninth that lifted the Cincinnati Reds over Los Angeles 8-6 on Wednesday night and extended the Dodgers' losing streak to a season-high four games.

De La Cruz belted an 0-1 fastball from Noah Syndergaard in the first inning that left the bat at 114.8 mph and landed into the last rows of the right-field stands at Great American Ball Park. The two-run homer tied the score 2-2.

A day after making his big league debut, the 21-year-old switch-hitter had the second-hardest-hit home run by a player 21 or younger since Statcast started tracking in 2015, behind only Toronto's Vladimir Guerrero Jr. at 115.9 mph on Aug. 21, 2020.

De La Cruz played shortstop a day after manning third, He tripled on a curveball in the third as part of a 2 for 4 night, a drive that went to the wall in right-center on four hops. He reached third in 10.83 seconds, the fastest time in the major leagues this season, according to Statcast. It was the second-fastest since the start of the 2020 season behind 10.75 seconds for Arizona's Corbin Carroll last Oct. 3.

Cincinnati overcame a 6-2 deficit in a four-run third on Jonathan India's sacrifice fly, Spencer Steer's RBI single and Tyler Stephenson's two-run homer.

TJ Hopkins reached on an infield single in the ninth and Benson homered off Evan Phillips (1-2), giving Cincinnati its second straight walk-off win and a three-game winning streak. Benson became the third Cincinnati player with a walk-off for his first home run after Jay Bruce on May 31, 2008, and Drew Stubbs on Aug. 20, 2009.

Alexis Díaz (2-1) struck out two in a perfect ninth. Cincinnati helped itself with four stolen bases.

REDS 2, BREWERS 0

All Andrew Abbott could think about was the four walks he allowed.

Stuart Fairchild and Tyler Stephenson hit solo home runs and Abbott threw six scoreless innings in his major league debut, leading the Cincinnati Reds to a 2-0 win over the Milwaukee Brewers on Monday night.

The struggling Reds (27-33) turned to Abbott, their top pitching prospect, to help the club avoid a four-game sweep at the hands of the Brewers (32-28), and it worked.

Abbott, a 2021 second-round draft pick from the University of Virginia, allowed just one hit, walked four and struck out six. The 24-year-old left-hander threw 105 pitches.

"I personally don't like the four walks," Abbott said. "It's a tough stat. The game overall was good, but the four walks, I've got to be better with that."

Abbott took 28 pitches to get out of the first inning before settling down and getting out of the frame unscathed after walking one and striking out another.

Abbott allowed his only hit of the game in the fifth, when Joey Wiemer doubled to left.

Abbott got out of the sixth after striking out 2018 NL MVP Christian Yelich and then was pulled. Four of his six strikeouts came on a fastball. The others came via his curveball.

REDS 9, DODGERS 8

Cincinnati Reds newcomer Elly De La Cruz predicted Matt McLain's late-game heroics.

McLain's single to deep center field highlighted a three-run comeback in the ninth inning as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-8 on Tuesday night.

Trailing 8-6 with one out in the bottom of the ninth, Cincinnati loaded the bases against reliever Caleb Ferguson. Ferguson walked Curt Casali, scoring Spencer Steer and cutting the deficit to a run. Jake Fraley was hit by a pitch, scoring T.J. Hopkins and tying the game at 8.

Ferguson (3-1) was pulled for Shelby Miller. McLain then singled over the head of Jason Heyward in center field to score Stuart Fairchild and snap Cincinnati's nine-game losing streak against the Dodgers.

McLain finished with three singles for the Reds (28-33), who hadn't beaten Los Angeles (35-26) since Sept. 17, 2021. Eduardo Salazar (1-0) earned the win, striking out two in an inning of relief.

De La Cruz, ranked as the game's third-best prospect according to Baseball America, made his major league debut. The 21-year-old batted cleanup and finished with a hit, two walks and a run scored in three at-bats.

Colts keep Rodgers out as NFL investigates gambling allegations

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Indianapolis Colts cornerback Isaiah Rodgers Sr. did not practice with his teammates Wednesday.

It's also unclear when — or if — he'll return.

Two days after team officials acknowledged they were aware of an NFL investigation into gambling allegations about a player, Rodgers was held out.

Neither the Colts nor the league have publicly identified Rodgers as the target of the investigation though Rodgers posted a statement on Twitter saying he made an "error in judgment" — hours after media reports linked him to the investigation.

"Like I said, it's an ongoing investigation," first-year head coach Shane Steichen said when asked whether Rodgers will continue to sit out until there's a ruling. "I think anytime something like this comes up, you've got to push it aside and move on. The players have done good so far."

The 25-year-old Rodgers was a sixth-round draft pick out of UMass in 2020. He was entering the final year of his rookie contract and the Florida native was expected to compete for a starting job after Indy traded Stephon Gilmore to Dallas during the offseason.

Rodgers started nine times in 15 games last season and had 34 tackles. His best season came in 2021 when he had 49 tackles, three interceptions and seven passes defensed — all career bests. He has generally been regarded as the Colts fastest player.

While it's unknown whether additional Colts players may come under scrutiny, the NFL sent a team to Indianapolis this week to reiterate the league's gambling policy. Steichen said the meeting was part of an annual visit that was arranged before details of the investigation went public.

The Indiana Gaming Commission has a regularly scheduled meeting next Thursday, but a spokeswoman for the commission said the NFL investigation is not on the agenda.

"We have received information pertaining to this matter and are following developments," a statement from the agency read. "The IGC is not the lead agency on this matter, as it involves alleged violations of a league policy. We will, however, continue to review information as it emerges to determine what, if any, regulatory actions are necessary."

Clearly, it's the NFL and officials from other sports will wrestle with this issue now that legalized sports betting has become prevalent in so many states.

Clearly, it's the NFL and officials from other sports will wrestle with this issue now that legalized sports betting has become prevalent in so many states.

In April, five NFL players were suspended for violating the league's gambling policy. Four were on the Detroit Lions roster and three — receivers Quintez Cephus and Stanley Berryhill and safety C.J. Moore — have been released. Cephus and Moore were suspended indefinitely for betting on NFL games while Berryhill drew a six-game suspension. Lions receiver Jameson Williams, the No. 12 overall pick in the 2022 draft, remains with the Lions despite drawing a six-game suspension for his gambling activity.

The other player involved, Washington Commanders defensive end Shaka Toney, also was suspended indefinitely.

Those suspensions came in the wake of last year's season-long suspension for former Atlanta Falcons receiver Calvin Ridley. He was reinstated in March and now plays for Jacksonville Jaguars.

It's also not the first major gambling issue for Indiana or the Colts.

Last month, Bert Eugene Neff, the father of a Cincinnati Bearcats baseball player, allegedly placed large bets on an Alabama-LSU baseball game. It resulted in the firing of Crimson Tide coach Brad Bohannon. Neff lives in Mooresville, Indiana, on the southern side of Indianapolis.

In 1985, the Colts released quarterback Art Schlichter amid rumors he had continued gambling following a previous 13-month suspension. Schlichter was the No. 4 overall draft pick in 1982 and never played in another NFL game.

"What I got from the whole situation is don't gamble," said linebacker E.J. Speed, who also is vying for a starting job. "I've been so focused on the game itself that I don't really get into gambling. I don't gamble outside of football, so I don't really pay too much attention to it."

Running back Zack Moss added: "I think, obviously, they say don't do something then you don't do it or whatever. But I don't really dabble into that too much, though."

And if the news, the investigation, the NFL meeting or the absence of a teammate from practice didn't send the proper message to Colts players, Rodgers' apology might.

"I know I have made mistakes and I am willing to do whatever it takes to repair the situation," he wrote Monday. "The last thing I ever wanted to do was to be a distraction to the Colts organization, my coaches, and my teammates. I've let people down that I care about.

"I made an error in judgment and I am going to work hard to make sure that those mistakes are rectified through this process. It's an honor to play in the NFL and I have never taken that lightly. I am very sorry for all of this."

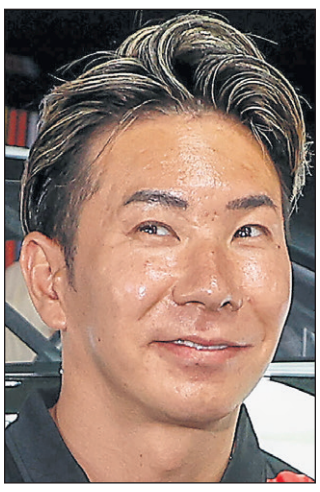
Kobayashi to debut Indy as 1st Japanese NASCAR driver

BY JENNA FRYER
AP AUTO RACING WRITER



KAMUI KOBAYASHI

LE MANS, France — Left out of the NASCAR celebration at the 24 Hours of Le Mans, Toyota used Wednesday at the track to showcase its own stock car program and the upcoming Cup Series debut for one of the top racers in the world.

Kamui Kobayashi will make his NASCAR debut on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway road course with Toyota in August driving for 23XI Racing, the team owned by Denny Hamlin and Michael Jordan.

The announcement made Wednesday had several top NASCAR executives in attendance — including chairman Jim France — as Toyota found Le Mans to be the perfect backdrop to spotlight the one-race deal.

Toyota Gazoo, after all, has won Le Mans the last five consecutive years and Kobayashi, part of the 2021 winning effort, is team principal of the two-car organization that will try to make it six straight wins in the most prestigious endurance event in the world.

Toyota had initially felt jilted when NASCAR blindsided the industry last year by announcing it would bring its new Next Gen car to centenary Le Mans in a specialized category that showcases innovation, but the project was with Chevrolet and Hendrick Motorsports. Toyota was the first rival NASCAR manufacturer to complain, and NASCAR has since tried to include all its partners in this weekend's celebration and France signed off on holding the Kobayashi announcement at Le Mans.

Toyota trails only Bentley, Jaguar, Ferrari, Audi and Porsche for most wins at Le Mans. Porsche holds the record with 19 victories.

It allowed Toyota to display the Camry it races in NASCAR; Kobayashi will drive the No. 67 in the Aug. 13 race.

"We've been working on this assignment actually for a couple of years and Kamui has become a friend and we understood it was his dream one day to race in NASCAR," said David Wilson, president of TRD, U.S.A. "With this great new Next Gen Toyota Camry TRD, the stars and planets started to align themselves and the next question became: Where should we announce this?

"It dawned on me with Kamui's record of success, and being the team principal, to do it on this global stage at the biggest sports car race in the world."

Kobayashi will be only the second Japanese driver to race in NASCAR's top Cup Series and only the fifth to race in one of NASCAR's top three national series. Kobayashi will be the first Japanese driver to race in the Cup Series in a Toyota, which entered NASCAR's top series in 2007.

"It's my dream, actually," Kobayashi told The Associated Press. "It's such a big sport in the United States and racing in Europe, I never had the chance or opportunity to race NASCAR. I think the opportunity will be challenging for myself because it is such a different category.

"But if I have success, I think it will make more opportunities for Japanese drivers. Toyota has been in NASCAR a long time, but there has never been any Japanese drivers for Toyota. That's also why I say I appreciate this opportunity for myself."

Kobayashi won the 24 Hours of Le Mans for Toyota in 2021 and hasn't finished lower than third since 2018. He has six podium finishes in eight appearances in the iconic endurance race.

Toyota trails only Bentley, Jaguar, Ferrari, Audi and Porsche for most wins at Le Mans. Porsche holds the record with 19 victories.

Kobayashi in 2021, after winning Le Mans and the World Endurance Championship title driving for Toyota Gazoo, was named team principal.

Kobayashi started his racing career karting in Japan but was discovered by Toyota while racing in Europe. He was named one of Toyota's reserve Formula One drivers and made his debut during the 2009 season at the Brazilian Grand Prix. He raced in F1 through 2014 with one podium finish in 75 career starts.

Following his F1 career, Kobayashi returned to Japan and switched to the Super Formula Series, a class he still actively competes in. He's since won the Rolex 24 at Daytona twice and was the anchor on an IMSA endurance sports car team in the United States for two seasons that was formed by seven-time NASCAR champion Jimmie Johnson.

Kobayashi loves racing in the United States, but IMSA's adoption of new regulations to make its top class eligible to compete at Le Mans created a conflict of interest between Kobayashi's Toyota responsibilities and continuing to race in IMSA, where Toyota is not represented in the top class. Toyota does field a Lexus in a lower IMSA division and Kobayashi raced for Vasser Sullivan Racing last June in Canada to get a feel for the GT car.

Many consider NASCAR's Next Gen car to be very similar to the GT Lexus sports car that Kobayashi drove in IMSA last year, and that's his closest experience to driving a stock car. He'll be permitted to test with 23XI at a small track in Virginia ahead of the race at Indianapolis, and expects some time on the simulator.

Either way, he isn't worried about seat time.

"I think I'm a guy who doesn't need much practice, to be honest," the 36-year-old Kobayashi told the AP. "I think once we jump in the car, we will be OK in a couple of laps. So I'm not really concerned about form."

Today's Puzzle Solved

Woman is hurt, lonely, and far from home

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: I am 50, and my husband of 28 years is 62.

We recently moved to a new country for his job. Our kids are attending university in another country. This has been a huge change for me as I have no kids at home to look after. For legal reasons I can't work here, but I do volunteer at the local homeless shelter.

My husband recently started reaching out to all of his ex-girlfriends, and when I asked why he said he can't explain it.

I am hurt, menopausal, lonely, and sad. I honestly don't know what to do.

Should I return to my home country and start my life over?

I can't speak to him or look him in the eyes because it hurts me so much.

To add to the misery, we are having his sisters visit soon for a two-week stay.

I feel like my spirit is crushed. – Crushed Woman

Dear Crushed: Your husband can explain his actions – he just doesn't want to.

And now you two are engaged in a silent and lonely battle.

As hard as it is for you, I would suggest looking him in the eye and pressing for an explanation regarding his actions, and being completely honest about what you are going through.

Sitting down with a couple's counselor would help.

It is possible to find therapy in other countries (I've done it), or you could connect with a therapist in your home country via telehealth.

I hope you will continue to try to build a life for yourself. Doing this when you're lonely and homesick is extremely hard work. Other expatriates can be an invaluable resource – if there are organizations or places where expatriates gather, do what you can to connect.

In the shorter term, if you are able to return home, at least for a visit, it might be one way for you to clear your head and clarify your options.

Because you seem to be dreading this particular event, you might want to exit while his sisters are visiting.

You can email Amy Dickinson at askamy@amydickinson.com or send a letter to Ask Amy, P.O. Box 194, Freeville, NY 13068. You can also follow her on Twitter @askingamy or Facebook.

Readers respond to a perplexed suburbanite

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Readers: A recent query from "Perplexed in Suburbia" asked why people under the age of 50 don't return friendly "hellos."

I posited that this might be a regional issue, but also asked readers if my generation has raised a generation of "rudeniks."

The responses flowed in, and I am sharing a representative sample.

While every theory suggested is valid, I think it's vital to understand that we never really know what others are going through, which is a great reason to be friendly, regardless of the reaction.

Dear Amy: At our family's rural retreat strangers wave VIGOROUSLY from their cars and trucks when encountered on the roads.

In our closely spaced prosperous cul de sac in the DC suburbs, every encounter is a chilly non-event.

I'd say the dynamic isn't generational. People in urban neighborhoods don't want to risk taking on new relationships too carelessly ... they ain't got the time! But out in rural-ville, loneliness is the threat. – Dave in Bethesda, MD

Dear Dave: I hear you.

Dear Amy: I live in a city high-rise, and I have noticed that most young people getting on the elevator behave as though there's no one else in there! But I don't think it's the way they were raised.

I think many people at an earlier stage of life haven't quite realized that we are here only for a short time, and that even the most fortunate among us have sorrows, fears, worries and disappointments, and that we can ease each other's way even slightly, with acknowledgment and kindness.

It takes a bit of living to see that. Almost without exception, my older neighbors make eye contact, smile, and say hello. I believe the younger ones will do so eventually.

– Alive in Chicago

Dear Alive: I agree with your take on this, and like you – I remain optimistic.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Slow down and give yourself time to find the win-win. Maintaining your friendship or support network is more important than scoring points against others. A relationship can be mended if you offer a sincere apology.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You may be ready for a change of scenery if things that didn't work in the past have triggered a resolution to try something new and different. Your unusual and inspiring spirit can attract new friends.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You could arrive at a conclusion although you may be unable to justify it. This is not the time to change your opinions or demand that other people change theirs. You can have greater success at a later time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Pride in someone else's accomplishments can fill your heart, and when you share the same goals and work together, you can share the rewards. You do not need to be mute and sit on the sidelines; your input could be extremely valuable.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Get attention for a job well done. The latest technology might provide the most appropriate tools you need to achieve your goals. You may not know how effective a change will be until it is completed and in operation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — The way to be sure something is authentic and not just an imitation is to assess it carefully. Do not be hesitant to carefully examine possible offers, investments and ideas. You can avoid arguments by remaining thoughtful and considerate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Before you try to fix anything, take the time to understand the steps one by one. Procedures you felt were just wasting time could be necessary for success. Reinventing the wheel can be more difficult than it seems.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Do not stubbornly resist change and you can have the best of both worlds. Find ways to live more sustainably and shave your bills by installing eco-friendly alternatives, or at least begin to research ways to make significant improvements.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Be ready for plans to change without warning. A friend, partner, or coworker may have something important come up and could leave you hanging. Consider the reason as you decide how to respond.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You can receive credit for a job well done. The desire to do remarkable things may motivate you to take the lead. You could make enviable progress in the long term by changing your approach and embracing an important trend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Steer clear of a detour just to follow a mirage. Plan an excursion with family or friends that can keep you on a safe path. Glamorous and fun-filled activities should be enjoyed to the hilt but avoid investing too much time or money in them.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Your creative urges could be frustrated by a whirlwind of noise around you that may feel overwhelming or block your concentration. Nothing can change until you take a few hours to yourself to gather your thoughts and refocus.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Show others that you can be there for them through thick and thin. It might not be necessary to spend excessive amounts of money to impress a special someone. Find unusual experiences and unique places to visit.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Cook up something you can share with your favorite people: Create a fabulous meal for the family or share amusing stories filled with tidbits of interesting information. Temper your enthusiasm for fun with responsible restraint.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You could find yourself being overly annoyed by gullible people, while becoming intrigued by something that might not end up being worth your own time or trouble. Suspend your disbelief long enough and try not to take things too seriously.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Let common sense prevail when it can. Indulging in a taste for extravagant items could cause regret when you look back on your expenditures while balancing your accounts. Wait to make a purchase, you may find something more worthwhile.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Offering someone an incentive can help you get things done your way. Try to resist the urge to make drastic or dramatic changes if you are going through a period of boredom. Give a tangible reward when someone has done an excellent job.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Try not to fall into a trap. Ignore any provocations because you could look like a bully if you are goaded into responding harshly. People may only notice your attack and might not know if it was justified. Win by walking away.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Lessons in life are always good when you learn from them. You could be wise to not to point out someone's error and make waves now; you might say something you should not. Find a way to smooth things over.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Home is where hugs can be cheaper by the dozen. Set aside some quality time to enjoy activities with your family or loved ones. You might be fascinated by a fad and tempted to spend your hard-earned dollars.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Love can conquer all. If you have made a seemingly frivolous purchase, put things right by looking at things from a different angle. If someone is not realistic right now, remain understanding and strive to find a compromise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Try and fix a minor problem before it can snowball into an avalanche. A little research could clarify a financial matter and save you from future headaches. A supportive friend is likely to pass along some valuable information.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — It may be difficult to get excellent value for your money at the moment. Any offering that seems too good to be true should be avoided. Control any urges to make large purchases or change your investments until you've considered every angle.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Don't bury yourself in guilt over a sin that no one else noticed but DO learn. Let go of the self-criticism and focus on the lesson. You can show people how amazing you really are by letting go.

Florida, LSU, UK head to NCAA baseball super regionals

BY ERIC OLSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Six of the record-tying 10 Southeastern Conference teams in the NCAA Tournament will take the next step on the "Road to Omaha."

No. 2 national seed Florida, No. 5 LSU and No. 12 Kentucky wrapped up regionals Monday and join fellow SEC members No. 15 South Carolina, No. 16 Alabama and Tennessee in super regionals beginning Friday.

No. 8 Stanford, TCU, Duke and Southern Mississippi also won regionals Monday.

Florida advanced with a 6-0 victory over Texas Tech. The Gators had been knocked out of three straight regionals on their home field and this time had to win three straight elimination games to reach super regionals for the first time since 2018.

Ryan Slater and two relievers combined on the four-hit shutout and BT Riopelle, who had been 0 for 15 with eight strikeouts in the regional, hit a pair of two-run homers.

"Last year left a bad taste in our mouths and we didn't want to overlook any team in this regional no matter what, and that's exactly what we did," Gators shortstop Josh Rivera said. "We came out here and we treated every team like it was the best team we were going to face all year and we just competed every at-bat, every pitch. It's a blessing to be where we are right now and to understand that the job is not finished."

Winners of the best-of-three super regionals will go to the College World Series in Omaha, Nebraska, beginning June 16.

Top-eight national seeds are assured of hosting super regionals if they win their regionals. The NCAA will announce other sites on Tuesday.

Matchups: Alabama (43-19) at No. 1 Wake Forest (50-10); South Carolina (42-19) at Florida (48-15); TCU (40-22) vs. No. 14 Indiana State (45-15); Southern Mississippi (45-18) vs. Tennessee (41-19); Oral Roberts (49-11) vs. Oregon (40-20); Texas (41-20) at Stanford (42-17) ; Duke (38-22) at No. 7 Virginia (48-12); and Kentucky (40-19) at LSU (46-15).

BIG BATS

Hayden Travinski and Cade Beloso hit back-to-back homers in the fifth inning to help LSU past Oregon State 13-7. ... Braden Montgomery went 3 for 4 with a home run in Stanford's 7-1 win over Texas A&M. ... Kurtis Byrne went 4 for 5 with two homers to lead TCU past No. 3 Arkansas 12-4. Tre Richardson went deep and drove in three runs a day after he homered three times, including two grand slams, and tied the NCAA Tournament record with 11 RBIs. ... Alex Stone, who homered twice against Coastal Carolina on Sunday, went deep again as Duke beat the Chanticleers 12-0. ... Hunter Gilliam and Ryan Waldschmidt hit RBI doubles in the sixth inning to help Kentucky to a 4-2 win over Indiana. ... Dustin Dickerson homered for the second straight game, this time hitting a tie-breaking three-run shot in the sixth inning to help Southern Mississippi past Penn 11-7.

MOUND MARVELS

Pac-12 pitcher of the year Quinn Mathews, who threw 114 pitches in seven strong innings in the regional opener against San Jose State, came back on two days' rest to throw 66 more in four innings of shutout relief against Texas A&M. ... Duke's Alex Gow and three relievers held Coastal Carolina to one hit through eight innings in a 12-3 victory. ... TCU's Cam Brown and Ben Abeldt combined to allow three hits against Arkansas, but issued six walks. ... Will Armistead struck out five while pitching 2 2/3 innings of one-hit shutout relief to finish Southern Miss' win. ... Mason Moore pitched five innings of shutout relief for Kentucky. ... Florida's Ryan Slater pitched five shutout innings in his third start of the season, and he allowed two runs over eight innings in three regional appearances.

AROUND THE HORN

The SEC also sent six teams to super regionals in 2004 and 2018. ... Indiana State announced Monday it would be unable to host its super regional because of a prior commitment to host the Indiana Special Olympics for the 51st straight year. Indiana State, as a national seed, would have been in line to host against an unseeded TCU. ... LSU is in supers for the eighth time since 2012 and 16th time overall, second-most to Florida State's 17. ... TCU is in supers for the first time since 2018. ... Arkansas failed to get out of regionals for the first time since 2017. ... Southern Miss is in supers for the second straight year under Scott Berry, who is retiring after the season. ... Duke made supers for the third time since 2018. ... Kentucky's only other regional title came in 2017.

Forte 5-2 favorite for Belmont over stablemate Tapit Trice

BY BETH HARRIS
AP RACING WRITER

Forte is finally getting a crack at running in a Triple Crown race. The colt, who was scratched the day of the Kentucky Derby, was the early favorite for the Belmont Stakes.

Forte, last year's 2-year-old champion, was made the slight 5-2 favorite at the draw for posts on Tuesday for the grueling 1 1/2-mile race.

Trained by Todd Pletcher, the colt will break from the No. 6 post in the nine-horse field on Saturday at Belmont Park.

Pletcher's other horse, Tapit Trice, is the 3-1 second choice and drew the No. 2 post. He finished seventh in the Derby.

"He's got a big, long stride on him," Pletcher said. "If we can get him into a good position and into a good rhythm, I think he's going to like the mile-and-a-half. He's been training that way."

Forte was the early Derby favorite, but was scratched by Kentucky officials the morning of the May 6 race because of a bruised right foot. He was on a vets' list that kept him out of the Preakness, but has since come off it.

"He's doing great, he's training really well. He hasn't missed any training," said Mike Repole, co-owner of Forte. "We still think this is the best 3-year-old in the crop and on Saturday he's going to prove that."

Mage, the Kentucky Derby winner, is skipping the Triple Crown finale after finishing third in the Preakness on May 20.

Angel of Empire is the third choice at 7-2 and will wear blinkers to keep him focused. He finished third in the Derby and is one of three horses in the race trained by Brad Cox.

National Treasure, the Preakness winner trained by Bob Baffert, is 5-1. He drew the No. 4 post.

Arcangelo is 8-1 and will break from the No. 3 post. He is trained by Jena Antonucci, who will try to become the first woman trainer to win the Belmont. Dianne Carpenter saddled Kingpost to a second-place finish in the 1988 edition for the highest finish by a woman trainer.

The other four entries are listed at double-digit odds.

The Belmont field, in post position order, with jockeys and early odds:

Tapit Shoes, Jose Ortiz, 20-1; Tapit Trice, Luis Saez, 3-1, Arcangelo, Javier Castellano, 8-1; National Treasure, 5-1, John Velazquez; Il Miracolo, 30-1, Marcos Meneses; Forte, 5-2, Irad Ortiz Jr.; Hit Show, 10-1, Manny Franco; Angel of Empire, Flavien Prat, 7-2; Red Route One, Joel Rosario, 15-1.
